Blue Ridge Speech and Hearing provides complete hearing evaluations from infants to adults and hearing devices for clients of all ages. If a hearing aid is not appropriate, the center will work with you to find an assistive listening device that can help you hear better on the phone, with the television, or one-on-one conversations.

The Center also provides screenings in speech, language, and hearing at clinics, community centers, schools, and agencies. Through grant funding, they have the ability to provide hearing aids and services for individuals who would otherwise not be able to afford them. They work closely with both Loudoun County Public Schools and reach out to our community through educational seminars and services to Senior Centers in Loudoun County as well as several retirement communities.

Blue Ridge's audiologists and therapists are non-commissioned professional staff that is licensed and certified within their respective fields. All clinical staff possesses Master's and/or Doctorate degrees as are required by law to provide speech, occupational therapy, and audiological services.
