Longwood University offers college credit and non-credit courses as the University promotes lifelong learning. Leadership classes, online classes for non-credit, special events and workshops, and various educational endorsements are available.

For years now, the center has taken on a regional presence, regularly serving students from Martinsville, Clarksville, Gretna, South Hill, and other cities throughout the region. As the center has grown in the number of students served, it has also grown to provide more and more higher education opportunities.
