Our support groups provide a place for people to express the many emotions associated with grief, anger, and sadness in a safe, supportive and confidential environment. Each individual has a unique experience of grieving and is encouraged both to share his or her views and to honor the views of others. Licensed professionals facilitate our support groups for individuals and families dealing with these issues. Facilitators use talk and art amongst other modes of intervention based on the ages and dynamics of the group. Our support groups are a service offered to educate and guide community members through the processes of loss and grief as they pertain to each individual.

Partially accessible to persons with disabilities. Hours open vary with need.
