Care transitions occur when an older adult moves from one care setting or level of care to another. Care transitions can be difficult and stressful for both the patient and the family caregiver.

We're here to help. Please let us know if you have a question or feedback by emailing info@seniornavigator.org. Be sure to include your city, county, or zip code so we can better meet your needs.

Care Transitions and Health Care

- One typical care transition is when there is a hospital discharge to nursing, rehabilitative, or home care.
- Communication between health providers and family caregivers is important to ensure smooth transitions.
- Care coordination can help make sure that the patient's needs are met during and after the care transition.
- Family members and caregivers can find the resources and information they need to connect with appropriate care transition supports and services.
